Anatomy of a Permit

The League's First "Mini Bar"

Anatomy of a Permit is a comprehensive, 3-part workshop that will dive deep into the murky waters of local regulation using permitting and licensing procedures. Our experienced presenters will examine all aspects of the law relating to local licensing and permitting beginning with a discussion of the regulatory framework itself, including legal issues relating to provisions commonly found in ordinances as well as considerations when developing new local permit or licensing ordinances. The second presentation will provide valuable insight into how to process an application, conduct a hearing, create a record and help ensure the body's decision is legally defensible. The final session will focus on various types of challenges and appeals that can follow local actions on a permit or licensing matter. We anticipate 4 CLE credits will be awarded to this workshop for municipal attorneys.

Matthew P. Dregne

Partner

Stafford Rosenbaum LLP

Matthew P. Dregne is a partner at Stafford Rosenbaum LLP and chairs the firm's Government Law Team. The firm currently serves as general counsel for over 30 Wisconsin municipalities. Mr. Dregne's practice focuses on representing private and public sector clients on matters relating to local government law. In addition, he represents municipalities, businesses and individuals as special counsel in land use and development matters and industrial, commercial and residential development.

Matt is the current president of the Attorneys Section of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, and the current secretary of the State Bar of Wisconsin Administrative and Local Government Law Section.

Eric J. Larson

Partner

*Arenz, Molter,
Macy, Riffle, & Larson, S.C.*

Eric is devoted to public service, in private practice. After graduating from law school in 1990 and completing a judicial clerkship, he served two years as an Assistant County Attorney where he learned the role of government attorneys, from the inside. Since that time he has focused his private law practice on the representation of municipalities, from this same perspective of helping government succeed. He relishes his role as part of the municipal team, solving municipal problems, and helping his municipal clients to thrive.

David C. Moore

Partner

Nowlan & Mouat LLP

David Moore is a current partner and past managing partner at Nowlan & Mouat LLP in Janesville, where he has practiced law since 1978. He is a trial lawyer who concentrates his litigation practice in business, debtor-creditor, municipal and real estate law, while also providing general representation to towns, including the Rock County Towns Association, and the School District of Janesville. Dave's trial practice includes the representation of commercial developers, manufacturers and retail businesses, as well as municipal governments. He practices in Wisconsin's state and federal courts, as well as the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit. Dave is a graduate of Luther College and the University of Wisconsin – Madison Law School.
